EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES REVIEW CHECKLIST

When Was the Last Time your Company had a Checkup?

About Fisher Phillips

If it has been a while, or if you can't even remember the last time your company reviewed its employment-related practices, it's time for a "checkup." Changes in employment law occur not only when new laws are passed, but also as the courts interpret existing laws. Even subtle legal changes sometimes affect a company's practices and what should be included in a company's policies and procedures. To remain in compliance with applicable laws and best practices, a company should schedule periodic reviews of human resources policies, practices and procedures to ensure that they are up-to-date.

At Fisher Phillips, we routinely help our clients audit human resource practices and ensure employment law compliance. With our help, you can make sure that you are doing things right. This checklist serves as a guide to help you review your pay and benefits practices, policies and procedures, such as recruiting and hiring, training and supervising, granting leaves of absence, disciplining and terminating employees, and many other matters. We can review your policies, practices and procedures to make sure they comply with all recent changes in labor and employment laws, and that they represent "best practices" for your company. If you do not have all of the right policies, practices or procedures in place, don't worry – we can work with you to develop them.

If you have any questions or concerns after reviewing this checklist, we can provide you with the information needed to help you conduct an internal review. We recommend that you contact a Fisher Phillips attorney prior to completing this checklist as this may serve to protect your company's responses under the attorney-client privilege.

About this Checklist

This checklist provides only a general outline for an internal review of some labor and employment law policies, procedures, and practices. The list is not a complete or all-inclusive summary of necessary employment law forms or practices. Important areas, such as those relating to COBRA, HIPAA, workers' compensation, management development programs, and other subjects are omitted from this checklist. The "correct" answers to these questions may depend on multiple factors, including state and local laws and laws regulating a particular type of business.

For a complete analysis, employers need to consider the nature of their business and the particular laws and regulations that apply. This document is not intended to constitute legal advice. However, employers may find it helpful to review this general outline with their labor and employment law counsel. Among other things, use of this checklist in conjunction with legal counsel may serve to protect the responses under the attorney-client privilege.

If you have any questions or concerns after reviewing the checklist, let us provide you with the information you need or help you with your periodic review. Prior to completing this checklist, please contact a Fisher Phillips attorney to assist you and ensure that responses are confidential.
