

Tips for Hiring and Working with Generation Z

Publication

7.01.20

In their article for Today's General Counsel, Megan Walker and Megan Winter explore the new wave of employees entering the workforce -- "Generation Z." This generation is the most racially diverse in the U.S. and is keenly interested in engaging with companies who can influence social values and address global issues. Megan and Megan provide tips for managers to successfully engage with and leverage the energy of Gen Zers, including using up-to-date hiring technology, offering meaningful work and to give independence and autonomy to these workers.
