In an interview with SHRM, Sheila Willis offers insight into how the federal vaccine mandate impacts contractors and subcontractors. She advises that federal subcontractors are subject to the vaccine mandate in the same way that federal contractors are subject to the mandate. “That is to say, federal contracts that may be less than the threshold of $250,000, are subject to transportation tariffs, take place on Indian lands, are grants, [and] contracts to provide power or utility services are excluded from the mandate.”
