

Lawyers Discuss How New Seattle Ordinance Will Impact Gig Economy Companies

Publication

7.18.22

In a bylined article published in Law360, Catharine Morisset and Lisa Nagele-Piazza provide a detailed description of Seattle's new App-Based Worker Minimum Payment Ordinance. They explain that the ordinance applies to gig economy businesses with 250 or more contract workers, and they discuss what these qualifying entities need to know to comply with Seattle's ordinance in the context of the broader trend in which state and local legislatures across the country are taking up the issue of whether — and what — gig economy worker protections should exist.

To read the article visit Law360 (subscription required).

Related People

Catharine Morisset

Partner

206.693.5076

Email

Lisa Nagele-Piazza
Lead Content Counsel
404.760.7943
Email

Service Focus

Wage and Hour

Related Offices

Seattle