Charlotte Regional Managing Partner Travis Vance and Columbia Partner Hagood Tighe were recently included in their respective states' Lawyers Weekly publications' 2023 Employment Law Power lists. The annual list identifies the top employment lawyers across the state and showcases their legal and community accomplishments.

Travis is highlighted for his leadership as Regional Managing Partner of the firm's Charlotte office and co-chair of the firm's Workplace Safety and Catastrophe Management Practice Group. In his profile, Travis credits his parents for sparking his interest in employment and workplace safety. "Growing up blue-collar with parents who worked hard to give me a decent childhood taught me the important values of honesty, transparency, and good work ethic."

Hagood is highlighted for his leadership as co-chair of the firm's national Wage and Hour Practice Group and as president of the South Carolina Bar. In his profile, Hagood discusses how he found his passion for employment law, saying that he thrives on helping executives and human resources professionals be better employers. "New and challenging issues come up every day and I feel blessed to have this career," said Hagood.
