Illinois enacted a law requiring employers to inform applicants and employees if they use artificial intelligence for hiring, disciplinary actions, or other workplace decisions. With amendments to the Human Rights Act set to prohibit discriminatory AI practices starting in 2026, it is crucial for employers to stay ahead of these changes.

Join Fisher Phillips attorneys David Walton and Danielle Kays in this informative webinar, as they explore the key things employers need to know about this law and outline essential steps you need to take to prepare for the implementation of Illinois' new AI employment law.
