Overview

Anthonia Ogbechie is a U.S. Army Reserve Major-turned attorney who defends employers in a broad range of workplace matters, including mediation, arbitration, grievance proceedings, collective bargaining, and litigation in state and federal court and before local, state, and federal agencies. Her experience includes advising on compliance with local, state, and federal laws, which often involves offering practical solutions to workplace harassment, discrimination, and wage and hour issues. Additionally, she provides training and webinars on labor and employment law topics. Having served as a U.S. Army Reserve officer and federal civilian employee for several years gives Anthonia a unique perspective on employee management and labor relations.

Prior to joining Fisher Phillips, Anthonia was an associate at a labor and employment law firm based in Ohio where she focused on cases related to employment disputes, labor law violations, and compliance issues.
